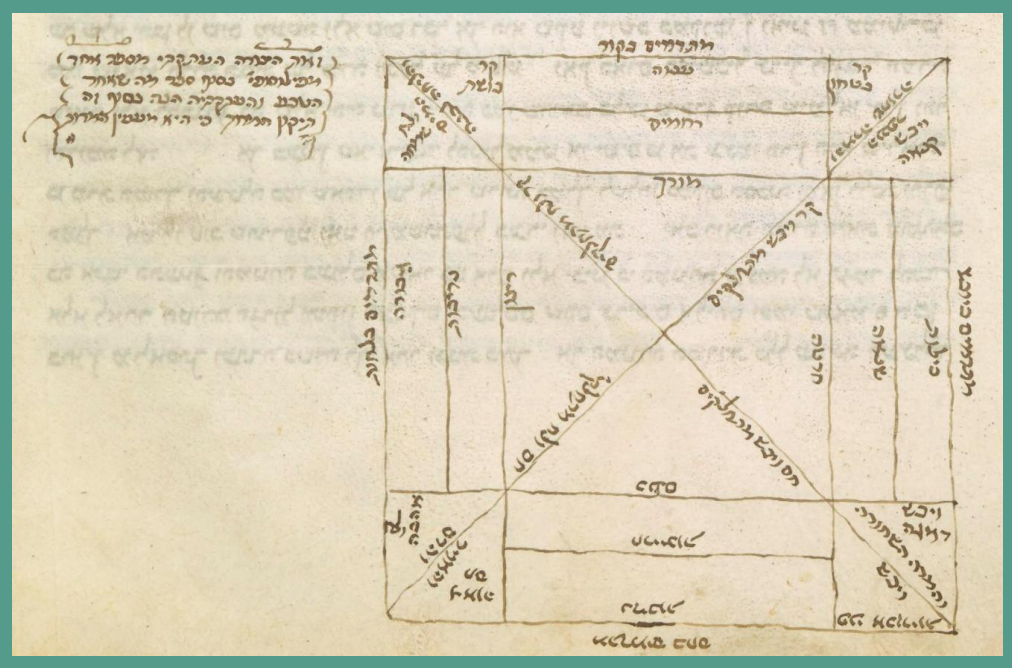
Workshop

Medieval Manuscripts of Practical Philosophy

30 June – 1 July 2026



In its fourth year, the HEPMASITE annual workshop dedicated to the material expression of intellectual activity in different philosophical genres will focus on medieval practical philosophy. The field of practical philosophy encompasses the Aristotelian domains of ethics, politics, and economics, as well as the associated literature. This workshop is devoted to the manuscript traditions of practical philosophy in Greek, Arabic, Latin, and Hebrew, and aims at fostering an interdisciplinary approach that brings together history of philosophy, philology and material analysis across traditions.
